See the $45M Private Pool Atop Soho's Tallest Building-To-Be

Friday, October 24, 2014, by Hana R. Alberts

Private pools are becoming a thing among the city's ritziest new penthouses, and Soho's tallest tower-to-be doesn't want to be left out of the action. 10 Sullivan, the Cary Tamarkin-designed 16-story tower rising between Spring and Broome, just unveiled the first renderings of its penthouse, which will span four full floors of the triangular building, with 8,359 square feet of interior space, six bedrooms, 7.5 bathrooms, a great room with 23-foot-high ceilings, two wraparound terraces, and a private elevator. Then there's the skylight-topped indoor pool with a waterfall, adjacent "spa" area, and wet bar-equipped solarium, topped off by a roof deck. 10 Sullivan apartments currently on the market range from $6.5M to 25M; meanwhile, this blockbuster will hit the market early next week with an asking price of $45 million.

THE PENTHOUSE
6 BEDROOM RESIDENCE

10 Sullivan's Penthouse is the highest residence in all of SoHo, occupying the tower's top three floors, plus a private rooftop. The Penthouse also includes two wraparound balconies on its first and second floors. The southerly Great Room, surrounded by glass windows on all sides, has a ceiling height soaring to 23' (7.01 m). A monumental staircase and private internal elevator connect all four levels. Currently designed to accommodate 6 bedrooms, including an expansive master suite with gas fireplace, his/her walk-in-closets, 7 ½ bathrooms, grand foyers, a library, eat-in kitchen, solarium, and an interior swimming pool—no other residence in SoHo can compare.
